Just a note to say...

We've enjoyed growing for you (and with you!) for the last 98 years and we're honored to call you our friends and neighbors. Please know that we want to keep you as safe as we can when you come to visit us at Wickman's. Here is how we plan to do that:

-As part of a notoriously dirty industry we know a little something about cleaning. We plan to take it up a notch as well to fight COVID-19. We'll be sanitizing door knobs, countertops, work stations, bathrooms and all other "high touch" surfaces throughout the retail and production spaces.

-We plan to purchase and apply a sanitizing antiviral fogging agent for use in our large, open spaces like the garden center and greenhouse. Though no products are labelled to eliminate the new COVID-19 specifically we'll be relying on the expertise of our suppliers to help us choose sanitizing products that will protect us all as best we can without harming our plants or beneficial insect population.

-Employees will be taking personal sanitation to the next level with extra hand washing/sanitizing and good germ control practices like coughing/sneezing into your elbow and staying home at the first sign of illness. Wickman's cares deeply for our little family of employees here and we are all confident that our jobs will not be at risk if we need to take time away to protect our health or the health of the community.

-We will get more of our products outside allowing our customers and employees to have ample space to spread out. Some products are always outdoors (trees, shrubs, perennial plants, bagged and bulk material) but we are committed to moving out greenhouse annual flowers and vegetables as soon as the weather allows.

-We are brainstorming a program to get you supplies to keep you growing this Spring. Check back often for details about a drop off system that could bring our high quality plants and essential gardening supplies straight to your front porch. Though we'd love to see you in the store we want you to be safe, whatever that means going forward.
